CALL FOR PAPERS

Canadian Foreign Policy Journal (CFPJ) is currently inviting paper submissions. CFPJ is an interdisciplinary peer-reviewed journal published three times a year by the Norman Paterson School of International Affairs (NPSIA) at Carleton University. CFPJ’s contributors and readers include federal and provincial officials, academics, analysts, journalists, NGO representatives, and business people; in short, all those who are informed and involved in Canada's international affairs. All submissions relevant to this community of experts will be considered, with specific attention given to the following topics:

- Canada-US relations after the Elections
- Digital diplomacy, social media and the new diplomacy
- Multilateralism in an era of instability
- Canada’s response to crises in the Middle East
- Domestic Politics and Foreign Policy

- Thematic Issues will also be considered. To submit a proposal please see the guidelines here: http://www.iaffairscanada.com/canadian-foreign-policy-journal-cfpj/guidelines-for-thematic-issues-proposals

Please submit your paper, along with an abstract and biographical note here: https://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rcfp. Your paper should be between 5,000 and 7,500 words and conform to the journal’s style guide

Contact

Canadian Foreign Policy Journal
Norman Paterson School of International Affairs
1125 Colonel By Drive, Ottawa
Carleton University
K1S 5B6

David Carment, Editor